

DEATH PENALTY FACED BY FOUR

Condemned Slayings Will Be Executed Within Next Four Weeks.

GREEN CASE IS PENDING

Gonzales Due to Hang Tomorrow;
Sabens Next Week; Milano
May 16.

Four hangings are scheduled to take place in the District Jail during the four weeks beginning tomorrow, two of the condemned men being white and two colored. Nathaniel Green, colored, assassin of Mrs. Adelaide Grant, was to have been executed March 25, but owing to the fact that the Court of Appeals had not passed on his case the execution was delayed. The case is still pending in the Appellate Court.

Tomorrow is the date set for the execution of Andrew Gonzales, colored, who was convicted for the murder of his wife, Madeline Gonzales, July 21, 1911. The prisoner's execution has been postponed a number of times because of a suggestion that he was mentally irresponsible. He had been in an asylum for the insane, and it was stated that relatives of his died in a similar institution.

Friday of next week William H. Sabens, former soldier at Fort Mifflin, Pa., will pay the extreme penalty of the law for the murder of Ada Haynes in her room at 1322 D Street Northwest. He was jealous of the woman and shot her without a word of warning. Sabens has been an ideal prisoner in jail.

Tony Milano, a shoemaker, will be the last member of the quartet to pay the extreme penalty of the law, his execution having been set for May 16. He was convicted of the murder of Harry Elton Smith, a twelve-year-old boy, September 10, 1911. After beating him to death with a blunt instrument, it was charged, he set fire to the shop to destroy evidences of the crime.

The opinion of the Court of Appeals in the case of Nathaniel Green is awaited with deep interest by those immediately concerned, as well as the public in general. Green was indicted for rape, and upon arraignment entered a plea of guilty, which plea the court declined to accept, and ordered him to be tried as upon a plea of not guilty. The jury returned a verdict of "guilty, with the death penalty." Thereupon the defendant moved an arrest of judgment, it being contended in his behalf that his plea of guilty left no issue to be submitted to the jury, and consequently no addition of the death penalty.

The court overruled the motion, holding that in any case of rape the jury may add to their verdict, if guilty, the words "with the death penalty," in which case the punishment shall be death by hanging, contending that the trial of all such cases by the jury, whatever the plea of the defendant may be. The sentence of death was imposed by Justice Stafford, the trial judge, in accordance with the verdict.

Justice Stafford Quoted.

In denying the defendant's motion in arrest of judgment, Justice Stafford said, in part: "The contents of the defendant are that there was no issue to be submitted to the jury, inasmuch as his (Green's) plea admitted his guilt; that hence there could be no verdict, and consequently, no addition of the death penalty. His construction of the statute is that the Legislature said to him: 'If you will plead guilty, you shall be imprisoned only; if you plead not guilty and are found guilty by the jury, you may be hanged'; that, faced with this alternative, he pleaded guilty, and is entitled to receive the milder punishment; that is, that construction that can properly and legally be placed upon the statute? Is it legitimate to suppose that the Legislature has put a penalty upon pleading not guilty? Would a Legislature have a constitutional right to penalize an accused person for pleading not guilty? Suppose the Legislature should say: 'The punishment of this crime shall be imprisonment only; if the accused will confess his guilt in open court, but if he will not confess and insists upon the government proving its case against him, he shall be hanged.' Would such an act be constitutional? Could any court in such circumstances ever have any assurance that a plea of not guilty was a voluntary plea? If a judge should say to the accused, 'If you will plead guilty, I will give you a lighter sentence than I shall give you if you plead not guilty and am convicted,' what would be the result? Any sentence passed upon a plea of guilty thus obtained would be set aside. Can we then suppose that the Legislature intended to do such a thing?"

COLOR MUSIC TEACHING EXPLAINED BY AUTHOR

Mrs. Fanny E. Hughey Gives Demonstration at Home of Dr. and Mrs. P. P. Claxton.

"The main idea in teaching a child is not to let him know you are trying to instruct him. Let him regard it as play," said Mrs. Fanny E. Hughey, of St. Louis, yesterday morning, at a drawing room demonstration of her system of color music teaching tendered her by Dr. P. P. Claxton and Mrs. Claxton at their home, 2025 Connecticut Avenue.

Mrs. Hughey's method is sometimes styled "The American Montessori, Plus," because it includes most of the natural expression of early child life taught by the famous Italian instructor, plus music; in fact, she holds that music is the medium through which mental development is first accomplished, and that it paves the way toward the foundation of general knowledge. She uses it in her private teaching for some time past, but only recently has it been brought to public notice.

At the biennial meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs in San Francisco, last June, when Mrs. Hughey gave daily demonstrations of what can be done with young children through the color music method, the concrete results of the warm approval of Mrs. Pennycuik, of New York, and a party of wealthy St. Louis clubwomen, who organized an association for the diffusion of the method in the East. Funds for the first missionary expedition were furnished by William H. Albers, a wealthy philanthropist, who gave it as a token to his motherless children.

In the party Mrs. Scott Parsons, wife of the celebrated surgeon who continued the treatment of Dr. Lorenz after his famous operation on Little Lolita Armour for congenital hip dislocation. Mrs. Ann McClean Sackey, daughter of the noted St. Louis philanthropist, Miss Olga Harris, Miss Alice Pettengill, and three young children. They left St. Louis ten days ago, have been warmly received in Chicago and other places on their way to the Capital, and will visit Philadelphia, New York, and Boston before returning to the West.

Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, and a body of school officials saw Mrs. Hughey demonstrate her work at the Franklin Building Monday afternoon. Tuesday night she addressed the League of American Penwomen at the Raleigh, this afternoon, she will see her give a color music lesson, and tonight she will speak at a meeting of teachers of the International Kindergarten Union in the city she will be given an audience by Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell and Miss Anna George, national leaders in the promotion of the Montessori system.

Cardinal Gibbons Sends Letter Stating Conditions of Worship.

A letter expressing the conditions for the observance of the jubilee to commemorate the sixteenth century of the peace bestowed upon the church through the edict of Milan, proclaimed by Emperor Constantine in the year of Our Lord 313, has been received by the Roman Catholic pastor of the archdiocese of Baltimore, which also includes Washington, from Cardinal Gibbons.

"In Baltimore and Washington two visits to the three churches which are nearest to and most conveniently reached by the faithful.

"The visits may be made on the same day or on different days.

"No special formula of vocal prayer for the intention of the Holy Father is prescribed; according to common opinion, however, five Our Fathers and five Hail Marys will suffice.

"Confession and holy communion must be distinct from that made to satisfy the Easter precept.

"Alms giving to poor, or for some pious purpose, according to one's means.

"The indulgence of the jubilee is applicable to the souls in purgatory.

"The time specified for the jubilee is from low Sunday, March 30, to the feast of the Immaculate Conception, December 8 of this year."

An interesting feature of the campaign are the charts which Edgar T. Honey, the executive secretary, has had prepared. They show the amounts raised for hospitals in similar campaigns in various cities.

It is explained that those making donations to the fund will be given twelve months in which to complete the payment of the amount subscribed.

THORNTON ATTACKS SUGAR SCHEDULE

Louisiana Senator Predicts that Large Refineries Will Profit by Removal of Duty.

In a statement given out yesterday Senator John R. Thornton of Louisiana attacked the sugar schedule of the pending tariff bill as certain to defeat the one object which has been claimed by the President and Congress to be the primary purpose of the proposed legislation. Senator Thornton said:

"I am in thorough accord with the view expressed by President Wilson that a tariff bill should be framed so as to encourage competition and prevent monopoly. But the pending tariff bill, in so far as it concerns sugar, will have just the opposite effect. The provision for free sugar without doubt will put the entire control of the sugar industry of the United States in the hands of the big refiners. At the present time they are meeting with very effective competition from the domestic sugar industry. If effect has been, and now is, to cheapen the cost of sugar to the consumer. With the removal of the competition now afforded by the domestic industry, these dominant refiners would control the market, and they could put up prices at will as soon as the domestic industry was annihilated. There is not the slightest doubt that such a course would be followed."

"In view of this situation, it is easy to see that free sugar will result only in the destruction of competition, and the opening of the way to the establishment of a burdensome and oppressive monopoly, able to impose its will upon the public and to exact higher prices from the consumer."

The bill of Senator Smith of Maryland to open school houses as social centers was indorsed by the Brightwood Park Citizens' Association at its meeting in Van Horn Hall, last night. A copy of the association's action will be sent to Senator Smith. The association will hold its final meeting before adjournment for the summer on May 25.
